IRA DAVIS NOW WANTS DIVORCE

Man, Who Advertised For Wife and Obtained Minister Same Way, Finds It's a Cruel World.

WERE MARRIED HERE MAY 17

Bride Was to Have Been His Housekeeper—Sensational Charges Made in Complaint.

It will ever pay to advertise. Ira Davis, a farmer living a short distance west of Rushville, advertised for a housekeeper a month ago. Now he has a wife. And the minister was obtained simply because he advertised, too. From the Daily Republican of May 21.

This is one case where it did not pay to advertise in the long run, for now Mr. Davis is suing his wife of only two months for a divorce. Mr. Davis had enough, and is ready to call it off. They were married May 17 according to the complaint which was filed today. Mr. Davis needed a housekeeper and when the right woman came along he married her. Now they are at outs and he demands an absolute divorce.

It will be remembered that Mr. Davis obtained the woman of his choice by accident. He advertised for a housekeeper and Miss Lulu B. Swafford, formerly of Michigan applied for the position. Miss Swafford filled the bill, but would not accept the position because there was no one else about the farm. At the suggestion of Mr. Davis she went to his sister's a short distance away for a visit. They became better acquainted and decided to get married.

After they secured the license the couple while strolling about the city noticed the advertisement of the Rev. J. B. Meacham at the First Presbyterian church. As the advertising game had secured him a wife, Mr. Davis decided that he should be the man to perform the ceremony as he too, believed in advertising. So the Rev. Mr. Meacham married Mr. Davis and Miss Swafford.

This all occurred in May. Their married life did not prove as happy as they expected, at least not so to Mr. Davis. According to the divorce complaint Mrs. Davis deceived her husband and the charges are very sensational. They separated July 12. Little and Little represent Mr. Davis.

J. Q. THOMAS ADVANCES.

Charles Kennedy, formerly interested in the Rush county fair and later one of the officials of the Indiana state fair, has been selected to officiate in a department of the Michigan state fair. His resignation causes J. Q. Thomas of this city to advance and in the future the Rushville man will be superintendent of the grounds, grand stand and coliseum admissions.

WENT SEVERAL FAST LAPS.

Jesse Ridout was fined five dollars and costs this morning by Mayor Black for public intoxication. The fine was stayed. Ridout was arrested Saturday afternoon near the Big Four station after he had driven his horse over the streets of the city at a fast clip. Ridout was under the impression that he was driving a race horse according to the police.

The Sunday School of the Ninth Street Baptist church will give ice cream supper Wednesday evening at the church. The one arranged for last Wednesday was postponed on account of the storm.

POISON VICTIM IS BETTER

Mrs. Jacob Tietzort Has Bad Night But is Improving.

Mrs. Jacob Tietzort, who by mistake took a tablespoonful of liniment composed of poisonous ingredients Friday morning, and who for a time was in a precarious condition, is reported as improving nicely. She spent a very bad night, suffering greatly from the effects of the poison which burned her throat and stomach. It was necessary for the attending physician, to make a return trip to the home Friday evening in order to relieve the suffering of the patient.

PEOPLE COMPLAIN OF WATER'S ODOR

Residents of the "Valley" Notice Peculiar Taste to City Supply the Last Few Days.

IT COMES FROM NEW WELLS

Many patrons of the Rushville water and light plant living in the "valley" have been complaining about the odor and the taste of the city water the last few days. They say that the odor of the water is nauseating and that some times it is almost impossible to drink it. Some people are lead to belief that the terrible odor causes the belief that the water tastes badly.

Since the peculiar phenomena is noticed more in the southeastern and business section of the city, it is pointed out as probable that the affected water comes from the wells just east of the race. Just after they were attached to the mains, it will be recalled, the water in the vicinity of the wells was white and fizzled like carbonated water. This was said to be due to the fact that some gas was in one of the wells.

Three women who have been drinking the affected water lately have been sick and they attribute their illness to this.

WARD OF COURT IS CAUGHT SMOKING

Cigarettes May Cost George Myers His Freedom—Papers Are Found in His Possession.

WILL PROSECUTE DEALER

George Myers, 17 years old, was caught smoking a cigarette last night by policeman Wolter and arrested. A package of tobacco and cigarette papers were found on the boy. Young Myers is a ward of the juvenile court and the finding of the "makin's" will likely send him to Plainfield. Myers was arrested a few weeks ago along with Delbert Newman for stealing some hides from Harry Kramer. The case against the Newman boy is pending in the circuit court. Myers was brought before Judge Megee and made such a good showing that he was allowed his freedom. He was put in charge of probation officer, James Miller and the sentence suspended pending his good behaviour. The boy has told the police where he obtained the cigarette papers and charges against the dealer will be filed. This is the first case here since the law became effective.

PROBE MOVES VERY SLOWLY

May be Another Week Before James E. Watson Will be Called Before Senate Committee.

TRIBUNE RENEWS ATTACK

Col. Mulhall Confides in Friend That President Wilson is Back of Him According to Affidavit.

Indications are, from the progress which the Senate lobby investigating committee is making, that James E. Watson will not get to take the witness stand this week. He spoke in Columbus, Ohio, Saturday and returned to Washington yesterday.

The examination of Col. Martin M. Mulhall is very slow work and very little of the correspondence has been gone over yet. It is believed in Washington that Mr. Watson will follow Col. Mulhall on the stand.

The Chicago Tribune renewed its attack on Former Congressman Watson last Saturday when it published two letters, one purported to have been written by Mulhall to Watson concerning his (Mulhall's) discharge by the National Association of Manufacturers, and Mr. Watson's reply to it.

Between the lines of the Mulhall letter can be read the threat of Mulhall to do just what he has done in selling his correspondence. Mulhall, according to the letter published in The Chicago Tribune, says in conclusion:

"I feel that I have gotten the same treatment from my Indiana friends that I have gotten from some of my so-called friends in the National Association of Manufacturers, and hope that God will spare me long enough to convince some of those friends that I still have a splendid fight left in me, and that I will be spared my health and strength for a few years yet to pay back to them, in a measure, the same kind of favors that have been handed out to me for the work I have done.

"Feeling sure that you will be pleased with this information, believe me to be very respectfully yours."

Mr. Watson's alleged reply indicates that he felt there was a threat implied in the language of Mulhall's letter and denied that he had any part in the events which lead up to this discharge of Mulhall.

In conclusion Mr. Watson wrote:

"I am not a candidate for any office and never intend to be, so that any influence you might bring to bear, either for me or against me, can not matter to me, but I dislike to loose my old friends and especially when there is no justification for it. With kind regards, I am, very truly yours." Washington dispatches contain the information that Mulhall stated to Samuel H. Springer of Baltimore July 2, according to Springer's sworn statement, that he had Pres. Wilson back of him and that he had nothing to fear.

Springer is under subpoena to appear as a witness in the congressional investigation on Tuesday.

In his sworn statement Springer said: "On Wednesday, July 2, I asked Mulhall if he didn't think he had killed himself entirely by making that public statement regarding his activities among Congressmen.

"No, I don't," he replied "President Wilson is back of me. I will be bigger now than ever before because the President is back of me. I have nothing to fear."

"Mulhall told me that the papers and other records he had were worth $50,000 to any newspaper and that he would sell them to the highest bidder, just to expose the manu-

OLDEST MAN IN STATE NEAR HERE

Drewery A. Massey, Age 106, Who Lives South of Orange, Has Clear and Retentive Memory.

VOTED FOR ANDREW JACKSON

Was Personal Acquaintance and Warm Admirer of Gen. Houston—Stories of Early Days.

Louis Ludlow, Sr., of Glenwood, father of Louis Ludlow, Jr., the Washington correspondent, writes very entertainingly of the life history of Drewery A. Massey age a hundred and six years, who lives in Orange. Few people in Rush county, except those living in the immediate vicinity of Orange, knew that probably the oldest man in Indiana resided here. Mr. Ludlow contributed the following to the Indianapolis Star:

Drewery A. Massey, who resides in the village of Orange, is perhaps the oldest man living in Indiana. He was born in 1807 and at the extreme age of 106 years he is such a noted specimen of longevity that curious persons often travel many miles to see him and to enjoy his entertaining line of conversation regarding men and events of the remote past. His memory, which is clear and retentive, stretches back over a sheer lapse of a century.

He is known far and wide as "The very old man of Orange" and is regarded with a sort of reverential awe, owing to the fact that he is a living link connecting the present with men and incidents of more than 100 years ago. His mental process are unimpaired, his sight and hearing are good and when a representative of the Indianapolis Star called he seemed genuinely pleased that it should be made known to the people of the state that Fayette county can boast probably the oldest citizen of the commonwealth.

He is the last survivor of a family of nine children and was born on the Holstein River in Knox county Tennessee, two miles from Knoxville, in 1807. He well remembers the stirring incidents, the excitement and enthusiasm displayed by his neighbors when the news came that the war of 1812 had been declared and the glad, patriotic shouts that came from the lusty throats of big loyal-hearted Tennesseans when Gen. Andrew Jackson saved New Orleans.

"Uncle Drew," as he was familiarly called, is an intense disciple of "Old Hickory" and claims to have been a relative of Mrs. Jackson. Any one who would dare to speak in a derogatory vein of Gen. Jackson in "Uncle Drew's" presence would get for his pains a coming down which he would remember as long as he lives.

"Uncle Drew" was a personal acquaintance and warm admirer of Gen. Sam Houston, who was Governor of Tennessee about the time he reached his majority. When the Mexican war was thrust upon the country a younger brother of Mr. Massey volunteered. Although "Uncle Drew" was 40 years old at that time he did not volunteer and did not serve in the Mexican campaign.

After the war had progressed for a while he concluded he would go to Mexico to see his brother, but in relating the incident, he said with a sly wink that he was fully as anxious to see "old Sam Houston."

His father and family moved to Indiana and located in Fayette county, between Everton and Bloominggrove, when there were only thirteen families in the entire county. For several decades he made it a practice

VICTIM OF TUBERCULOSIS

Funeral of Martin R. Chandler of Sandusky Held Sunday.

The funeral services of Martin R. Chandler, age twenty years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Chandler of near Sandusky, who died Saturday, were held at the Sandusky Methodist church Sunday afternoon at two-thirty o'clock, with the Rev. W. H. Sidebottom officiating. The deceased had been suffering from tuberculosis for four months. Before being stricken he was employed on a farm north of Sandusky. He leaves his parents, two sisters and two brothers.

LOCAL PUBLISHER BEATEN IN FIGHT

Ed Wolters Cleans up on James Naden, Who Has Him Arrested For Assault and Battery.

TO FACE PROVOKE CHARGE

Ed Wolter pleaded guilty to an assault and battery charge preferred by James Naden, publisher of a local weekly paper, today, before Squire Kratzer and was fined one dollar and costs. The fight between Wolter and Naden was the outgrowth of trouble between Naden and Miss Emaline Wolter, daughter of Ed Wolter, who at the time was employed by Naden. Wolter alleged that Naden accused his daughter of stealing and when they met Saturday night Naden is said to have received the worst of the fight.

It is understood that the trouble started over work done at Naden's office. The first trouble occurred June 9, and Miss Wolter alleges that Naden cursed her. Naden is said to pay the girls who work for him according to the amount of work they do and he claimed Miss Wolter took money for work she did not perform. Following the trial of Wolter, Miss Wolter filed an affidavit against Naden charging provoke and he entered a plea of not guilty. The case was set for trial tomorrow morning at nine o'clock.

NEW HAY IN MOW; BARN BURNS DOWN

Fire on Tom Ertle Farm Sunday Believed to Have Been Caused by Spontaneous Combustion.

IGNITES AN OLD LOG HOUSE

The large barn on Tom Ertle's farm a short distance northwest Gings burned to the ground yesterday. The loss is estimated at one thousand dollars, which is only partly covered by insurance.

The fire is believed to have from spontaneous combustion in the newly mown hay which had just been placed in the hay mow the latter part of last week. There were sixteen tons of hay in the barn. In addition to the hay, several farming implements and some buggies and wagons were burned up. There was no live stock in the barn.

Sparks from the barn fell on an old log house on William Knecht's farm adjoining, which was used as a shelter house for farming implements, and ignited it. The house and all of the implements were destroyed at a loss of a hundred and twenty-five dollars.

TWO WAYS TO DEAL WITH SIN

Wrongdoer May be Forcibly Restrained or Drawn Voluntarily Away From Evil.

SERMON BY REV. W. H. WYLIE

First Policy Has Value Within Certain Limits, But the Limits Are Small, he Says.

"God's Redeeming Love" was the subject of the sermon preached by the Rev. W. H. Wylie of the St. Paul M. E. church at the union meeting at the coliseum last evening. The Misses Martha Hogsett and Norma Smith sang a duet and B. F. Miller sang a solo, which furnished the special musical numbers for the evening. The large auditorium was about half full of people.

The text, the pastor declared, expressed the very core of the Gospel, the everlasting, infinite love of God for sinful men. He pointed out that the death of Jesus was unique, compelling in its pathos and tragedy, it commands our wonder, and melts to tears, he continued, but while we sorrow over it, we joy in it. The death of Jesus was not that of a martyr, but the untimely end of a noble character.

"Let us consider this fact of sin," the minister said, "which we treat so lightly, trifle with so carelessly, indulge in so readily. We are often liable to think sin merely a Bible word, the creation of the theologian, only something which the preacher talks about. But sin is interwoven with life itself; the pages of his story are stained with its blots; the music of life is spoiled with its discords."

What's In A Name?

Shakespeare wrote: "The choicest treasure mortal times afford is spotless reputation."

Whether we are in business or in a profession, whether we are large or small, if our success depends upon our dealings with the public, a fair and honest reputation is indeed a choice treasure.

To have no reputation is almost as undesirable as to have a bad one.

Sometimes an enterprising manufacturer arranges to distribute his product through an equally enterprising retailer. In this way two substantial reputations unite in a common cause. Each strengthens and fortifies the other.

The retailer who has not yet enjoyed the benefits of selling a nationally known article, and of being helped by the manufacturer's "spotless reputation" tacked onto his own is overlooking one of the finer points in latter day merchandising.

TURKISH TROOPS MARCHING NORTH

Ottoman Government Playing a Bold Game.

AFTER ITS LOST TERRITORY

With the Commander in Chief of the Forces Personally Taking the Field at the Head of a Strong Army Headed For Territory Lost in the Recent Struggle Against Allies Who Now Are Foes, Complications Multiply.

Constantinople, July 14.—On to Adrianople the Turkish army has started to march. On imperial decree orders were issued to occupy the territory which remained to Turkey after the signing of the treaty of peace in May, and which is not now occupied by Ottoman troops, but by Bulgarians. According to the Agency Ottoman, the advance, which apparently took place both from the Tchataldja lines and the Gallipoli peninsula, encountered no resistance.

All furloughs have been stopped and the officers and men who are now absent will rejoin their regiments at once. The government has again requisitioned horses and transport facilities, and everything points to Turkey's intention to take an active part in the war now proceeding between Bulgaria and the other Balkan states.

It is stated in diplomatic circles that an arrangement is about to be concluded by Turkey and Roumania for joint action, in which case it is thought that the Turks will not remain on the defensive, but will try to occupy the territory up to the Ergener river. There was a long conference between the grand vizier and the Roumanian minister. It is believed that Turkey has agreed to lend Roumania five torpedo boats in return for Roumania's support. Izzet Pasha, the Turkish commander in chief, has left Constantinople for the front. Another report in circulation is that an agreement between Turkey and Serbia has been arranged.

The Turkish troops entered several villages in the neighborhood of Tchataldja and Bulair, without any opposition from the Bulgarians. It is said that the Bulgarian government has ordered the military authorities to arrange with the Ottoman commanders for the Bulgarian troops to evacuate the territory belonging to the porte, which, according to the provisions of the treaty of peace, are to be handed over to the Turks.

The mission of M. Natchevitch, the Bulgarian plenipotentiary to Constantinople, has failed, but the proposals of M. Pavlovitch on behalf of Serbia have succeeded and an agreement between Turkey and Serbia soon will be signed. It is said that the Ottoman government has been assured that a large portion of Thrace will be restored to Turkey. Negotiations are proceeding between Turkey and Greece with a view to an understanding.

PROTEST TO CIVILIZATION

Greek King Arraigns Bulgarians in Scathing Terms.

Athens, July 14.—King Constantine has sent the following message to the Greek minister of foreign affairs:

"The commander of the Sixth division reports that Bulgarian soldiers, carrying out the orders of their captain, gathered together in the courtyard of the school at Demirhisar two priests and over 100 notables, whom they massacred. The bodies have been disinterred in order to prove the crime. Bulgarian soldiers violated girls, one of whom, resisting, was cut to pieces.

"Protest in my name to the representatives of the civilized powers against the acts of these monsters in human form. Protest also to the entire civilized world and say that, to my regret, I see myself compelled to wreak vengeance in order to inspire these monsters with terror and make them reflect before committing more outrages of this sort.

"The Bulgarians have surpassed all the horrors of barbaric times and have proved that they no longer have a right to be reckoned among civilized people."

The commander of the Seventh division reports that the town of Serez has been burned, with the exception of the Jewish and Mussulman quarters. Many men, women and children were found murdered or burned in their homes. Twenty thousand persons are without shelter.

London Summary of Situation.

London, July 14.—The greater part of the reports from the near east is devoted to recriminations on the part of the Bulgarians, Greeks and Servians. The two latter charge the Bulgarians with the most ghastly atrocities, such as the burning and crucifixing of the wounded, abuse of the white flag and the placing of Maxims in ambulances. It also is alleged that the ears of women with the earrings still in them have been found in the pockets of Bulgarian prisoners. There are reports from Servian sources of disaffection in the Bulgarian army. A revolt is reported at Vidin on the Danube, where the men murdered their colonel. Servian officers have declared that Bulgarian officers who were made prisoners denounce King Ferdinand in unmeasured terms.

MILLIONS LOST BY EGG BREAKAGE

Uncle Sam Seeks Safest Manner of Packing.

SITUATION GROWS ACUTE.

Loss to Producers and Consumers So Large That Government Is Conducting Extensive Experiments to Minimize It—Railroads Begin to Regard Carrying Eggs as Unprofitable.

To reduce the enormous breakage of eggs in transit, which yearly causes a loss of millions of dollars to producers and raises the price of eggs for consumers, the United States department of agriculture, through its bureau of chemistry, is conducting extensive experiments to determine the safest manner of packing eggs for long and short shipment by rail.

According to an article in the Year Book Reprint No. 552, which deals with "The Effect of Present Methods of Handling Eggs on the Industry and Product," the waste from the breakage of eggs in New York city alone in 1909 was over 137,804,768 eggs or over 11,500,000 dozen of eggs out of a total consumption in 1909 of 127,689,600 dozen of eggs. In other words, about 9 per cent of all eggs received in New York were cracked, and of these a large number were unfit for food use.

Eggs Come Long Distances.

The egg supply of large cities, and particularly New York, has to come from a long distance, because, according to the thirteenth census, the middle Atlantic states in 1909 sold only about 110,000,000 dozen eggs, or not enough to supply New York alone if every egg had been sent to that point.

For the eastern coast cities the distant corn districts are practically the sole source of supply, because the little gray hen does not have to scratch so hard for a living in the cornfield as she does where grain is scarce. Increasing consumption of eggs adds to the distance from which eggs must come and makes the safe shipment of this valuable food product more and more essential.

Preventing Egg Breakage.

The bureau of chemistry regards the investigation of the methods of preventing egg breakage as particularly important because the many millions of dozens of eggs now broken in shipment naturally tend to keep the price of this valuable food higher than if there were no breakage or the breakage were materially reduced.

The bureau, through the food research laboratory, is now engaged in shipping eggs handled in different ways on long journeys to different points in the United States and is carefully noting their condition on receipt at their destination.

Shippers, railroad men and commission men are co-operating heartily with the investigators of the government through their joint conference committee composed of representatives from the National Butter, Egg and Poultry association, the Traffic Managers' Association of Chicago and the United States department of agriculture.

Situation Growing Acute.

The situation is growing very acute, because the railroads are claiming that their damage losses are such as to make the carrying of eggs an unprofitable commercial proposition. The shippers and consignees have large sums of money tied up in claims and litigation with the roads.

If the department of agriculture succeeds, as it hopes to do, in devising a successful method of shipping eggs it will contribute importantly to the poultry industry, in which the little gray hen produces food worth half a billion dollars annually.

Guggenheims After Abner Giffin's "Goat."

ACCORDING TO GIFFIN'S TALE

Hoosier Who Went West and Got Into the Mining Business and Then Came Home and Sold Large Quantities of Stock in His Properties and Is Now In Jail at Laporte, Declares He Is Victim of Syndicate's Machinations.

Laporte, Ind., July 14.—Continued delay of trial of the case of Abner Giffin, president of the Apex Gold Mining company of Seattle, Wash., who is under arrest here on the charge that the stock in the Apex mine which he sold is worthless, have led to the belief among some of the people that the authorities are skeptical about being able to convict him. According to reports that have come from almost every city in northern Indiana, southern Michigan and northwestern Ohio, the statement of $100,000 worth of Apex stock held here and in this vicinity is thought not too big. Giffin was born and reared at Rolling Prairie, Laporte county, and in his younger days he sold sewing machines in this vicinity. This gave him a wide acquaintance, and so he found it easy to sell big blocks of mining stock to his old friends.

The first real first hand information from Seattle since the arrest of Giffin came to Laporte in the news brought by John Cox of Everett, Wash., who is well acquainted with Giffin and has often visited the Apex mine and has been over the Seattle-Tacoma railway, stock in which Giffin has sold in big blocks in this vicinity. Cox says Giffin has the line and is "the whole thing," he and his family being the officers and directors of the Apex Mining company and of the electric line. Cox says Giffin has owned the mine for several years and has operated it in a small way.

Whenever he ran short of funds he would make a trip east and sell some stock. In this way he has kept the mine running, and, according to Cox, has accumulated enough to purchase and stock one of the best and largest ranches in Washington, the property, however, it is said, being in his wife's name. As to the mine itself, Cox says it is located in the side of a mountain at an altitude of 5,000 feet, and is inaccessible except on foot over a rocky and zig-zag trail. He says that the highest pay dirt it ever yielded assayed $31 a ton.

The mine is nine miles from a railroad, to which the ore is taken in buckets over pulley and wire transmission for two miles and the balance of the distance by wagon, except for a short distance in push cars over a three-foot gauge strap railroad. From the nearest shipping point to the smelter in Tacoma is ninety miles, and Mr. Cox estimates that the cost of mining and getting the ore to the mine is $20 a ton. When interviewed Giffin said that the Guggenheim interests are fighting him. First he says the big syndicate paid him $1,000 a ton for his ore, then it cut the price to $90 a ton, and now it is paying him only $14 a ton. The syndicate hopes to freeze him out, he says.

TRYING TO FIND WAY OUT OF HUGE STRIKE

White House Conference May Accomplish Something.

New York, July 14.—The vote for a strike of the 100,000 trainmen and conductors on forty-two railroads east of the Mississippi and north of the Potomac and Ohio rivers was ratified unanimously at a meeting of the general committee of conductors and trainmen on these railroads. The committee, however, also agreed, in response to the appeal of Seth Low, president of the National Civic Federation, to defer action on the question of calling the strike until after the conference today in the White House, called to reconcile, if possible, the conflicting provisions in the Newlands and Clayton bills, amending the Erdman act, so that a bill satisfying both sides might be passed in time to avert a strike.

As soon as the decision of the committee to defer action was learned, Mr. Low made arrangements to go to Washington with Ralph M. Easley, chairman of the executive council, and Marcus M. Marks, chairman of the local conciliation committee. President Lee of the trainmen's brotherhood, and President Garretson of the Order of Railroad Conductors, also went to Washington to attend the White House conference.

Beyond confirming the report that the ratification of the strike vote was unanimous, the heads of the two railroad brotherhoods were not willing to talk much. They would not say when the strike order would take effect.

"The men who are leaving have to reach their homes," said President Lee, and they will be the leaders of the strike in their respective divisions. It will take some of them forty-eight hours to get to their local divisions.

"Will you and Mr. Garretson make an offer of arbitration under the Erdman act to the railroads before the strike is called?"

"We will not," he replied. "We are through. Unless the railroads on being informed of the situation declare themselves willing to arbitrate under the Erdman act and propose arbitration, there will be a strike."

MAILS WILL BE CARRIED

Even if There Is a Railway Strike Postal Authorities Will Not Worry.

New York, July 14.—The postal authorities here do not anticipate trouble in handling the mails, even in case there is a general railroad strike. The impression among them is that the trainmen will not strike.

No preparations have been made here, said Postmaster Morgan, for the event of a general railroad strike. He does not expect any difficulty in handling the mails during the present situation. He said that he supposed the trainmen would not interfere with the running of mail trains any more than milk trains, if there were a strike. In other strikes they had allowed these trains to run, and in fact he did not know of a railroad strike in which the mail trains had not been moved.

GROWNUP FISH FOR RIVERS.

Kansas Hatchery's Experiment Has Interested Countries Abroad.

Kansas has the largest fish hatchery in the world, and it is rapidly becoming known wherever fish are propagated by state and government authority. L. L. Dyche, state fish and game warden, has received requests for information about the Kansas hatchery from Japan, Germany, France, Sweden and England. The Washington embassies of these countries have been instructed by their governments to obtain all the information possible about the Kansas hatchery, and it is likely that some of these countries will send expert fish men to Kansas to see what the state is doing.

The chief proposition in which the other countries are interested is the plan of Mr. Dyche to distribute only "grownup" fish to the streams and ponds of the state. The other countries take the young fish as soon as they are large enough to ship and put them in the streams and lakes. Kansas holds the fish two years in its hatchery and puts the larger ones into the streams.

FOSSIL CAMEL IN ALASKA.

Supports Theory That Continents Were Once Joined.

The discovery of fossil bones of a camel in Alaska, within the arctic circle, has just been announced by the Smithsonian institution in Washington. Experts say this tends to support the theory of the existence of a wide Asiatic-Alaskan land connection of comparatively recent date, which for a great length of time served as a highway for the migration of mammals from the old world to America.

Copley Amory, Jr., found the fossils last summer about fifty miles from the mouth of the Old Crow river, in Yukon territory, Canada, not far from the American boundary line.

The discovery also adds support to the supposition that milder climatic conditions prevailed in Alaska before the era of man.

Washington Is Confident.

Washington, July 14.—There is a general feeling among officials in Washington that today's White House conference will bring results which will avert any danger of a strike on the railroads of the east.

ELECTRIC TRAINS IN A HEAD-ON COLLISION

Fifteen Killed and Many Injured at Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, July 14.—Two electric trains on the Venice short line collided, about five miles outside the Los Angeles city limits late last night and fifteen lost their lives and between forty and fifty persons were injured, ten probably fatally. The Los Angeles-bound train was loaded to its full capacity with men, women and children, who had been enjoying the day at the beach resort and were returning to their homes. Those who were the more seriously injured were in the first coach of the incoming train, which was thrown from the track when the crash came. The Venice-bound train carried only a few passengers, who were returning to their homes at the beach after spending the day with relatives in Los Angeles.

FOUGHT FIRE WITH SALT

How Great Blaze at Michigan City Was Kept Under Control.

Michigan City, Ind., July 14.—Fire in the lumber yards of the Haskell & Barker Car company caused a loss estimated at more than $500,000.

Apparatus sent here from five different cities aided in checking the blaze, but salt, which was used in large quantities, was largely responsible for keeping the fire under control. Salt in freight cars was commandeered and hundreds of willing shop hands threw it over the flames and sprinkled it upon the lumber untouched by the fire. Dynamite also was used to raze buildings in the path of the flames.

The flames cleared a space larger than one of the city's blocks. A strong southwest gale swept the flames through the yards and carried burning embers for hundreds of feet. Several residences ignited from sparks and were destroyed.

He Wanted to Die.

Connorsville, Ind., July 14.—George M. Brown, a local cigar and news dealer, shot himself three times with a 32-caliber revolver. One bullet struck him in the right temple, another in the back of the head and the third in the breast, almost in line with the heart. He revived, but all he would say was that he wished to die. Financial troubles are believed to have prompted the act.

Survived a Terrific Shock.

Wabash, Ind., July 14.—Mark Jennings, an employe of a traction company, received a charge of 33,000 volts of electricity when he accidentally touched a high tension wire at the power plant here. One shoe was burned from his foot and his right arm and side were burned to a crisp. Jennings did not lose consciousness, but is in a critical condition.

The appropriation for governing California for the coming year is nearly $20,000,000.

Auto Driver Held to Answer.

Terre Haute, Ind., July 14.—Following the death of George R. Denehie from injuries sustained when hit by an automobile driven by Robert George, a warrant was issued charging George with involuntary manslaughter. George was arrested and released on bond of $1,000. Denehie was a master mechanic of the Terre Haute, Indianapolis & Eastern Traction company. He was run down when he stepped from the running board of a streetcar.

T. R. Said Nothing.

Something funny happened at a "progressive" party reunion in New England the other day. The Colonel, who prepares the policies and writes the platform for the party, took occasion to reiterate his views in favor of a big army, a big navy and the necessity of resenting "insults" to the nation by force of arms. At the Bunker Hill celebration he had marched up the hill and made a rip-roaring speech against treaties which made "national honor" justiciable, and in favor of plenty of big guns, fighting men and battleships.

At the reunion in question, one of the participants was the Hon. Joseph Walker, a former speaker of the state house of representatives, and last year's republican candidate for governor who followed his defeat with desertion to the "progressive" camp. His newness in the party did not close his mouth in the "progressive" conference, and after the Colonel had finished his speech, he strode to the front and unburdened himself as follows:

"I am convinced, however, that I owe it to my country, to the progressive party, to myself, to make my position clear on the subject of this morning's discussion, and to warn the progressive party against the danger of militarism, which today is raising its horrid head so high among the nations of the earth. I for one, am a firm believer in the settlement of international disputes by peaceful means alone. I am in favor of general arbitration treaties, under which all justiciable disputes, even those involving national honor and vital interests, shall be submitted to arbitration. I am in favor of submitting to arbitration the question whether a particular dispute is justiciable or not. I stand unflinchingly for the reign of law among nations. The time has come to establish treaties limiting and lessening military armaments. The time has come for the United States to show her moral courage by firmly refusing to be drawn into a wasteful and wicked rivalry among nations in building up their military strength. The time has come for the United States to take her stand on the principle, enunciated by Lincoln, that right makes might. I, for one, am ready to act upon the belief that no nation will attack the United States or infringe her rights so long as she herself pursues a course based on right and justice."

The Colonel is not used to defiance of this kind, and all he could do was gasp while the crowd applauded. He said not a word in rejoinder.

Life of Today.

Nobody can know all that is going on in the world, but most people can inform themselves regarding the best practice and the latest methods, not only in their own special field of endeavor, but in all fields in which they are from time to time required to act.

The people in a community that has not improved its facilities during the last quarter or half century are for all practical purposes disregarding the vast progress that has been made during 25 or 50 years—the busiest and most progressive years in the world's history. They do not know what is going on in the busy world outside.

To many rural people a visit to a large city or even to another town is like a visit to a foreign land. They are not only unfamiliar with the superficial customs and manners of the place visited—which is no discredit to them—but they know so little of travel, of ways of getting about, that they can not avail themselves of the opportunities to learn much of value that the place has to teach.

Travel is a great educator and no man who remains throughout his life in the seclusion of a single community is likely to be imbued with the spirit of enterprise and progress that prevades the outside world. This spirit is needed for the regeneration of his community, and in justice to himself and to his fellows every citizen ought to make frequent visits to other communities in order that he may take back home the knowledge and the enterprise that his own community so much needs.

"Uncle Drew" is a dyed-in-the-wool Democrat, having voted for every Democratic presidential candidate from Andrew Jackson to Woodrow Wilson—a record which probably can not be duplicated in Indiana, if, indeed, it has a counterpart in the entire country. He never has belonged to any church and declares that he never will. He uses tobacco and says laughingly that in his younger days he was "considerable of a boozier," though he has long since "cut that out."

He has been married five times. His only living child, a daughter by his first wife, resides in Iowa and is now 80 years old. He said he had not heard from his daughter for a long time—in fact, he was not quite certain that she is still living. "Uncle Drew's" home is a small, frame cottage on the south side of Orange and has been abode for forty-seven years.

Of the population that inhabited the mundane sphere when Uncle Drewery came into the world 106 years ago not one in a million is now left to point to the long age. When he was born Thomas Jefferson was president and Aaron Burr was Vice President of the United States. When he was in his swaddling clothes Robert Fulton was making his first trip up the Hudson with his new invention, the steamboat, and Aaron Burr was tried for treason for attempting to establish an independent republic of his own in the Mississippi Valley.

Washington Irving was just beginning his career as an author, with his "Salmagundi." There was not at that time a railroad in the world and all water craft, was propelled by the wind. When the infant Tennesseean was born, Napoleon was engaged in war with Russia and cannon were roaring at the battle of Friedland. He was a lad of 13 when George III of England died, and the span of his long life covers the most momentous era in the world's history.

TWO WAYS TO DEAL WITH SIN

fancied belief that sin is only a Bible word. He cited innumerable masterpieces in literature which deal with sin.

"Is sin a mere Sunday word?" he asked. A mere fiction of the preacher. Read the daily papers; observe life about you; look within and see that nothing is more terribly real. Blind, perverse, defiling sin leads God's children astray and brings anarchy into His kingdom. It challenges His perseverance; it defies His Will; it insults His holiness; it despises His goodness; it outrages His love. Sin is the eternal enemy of God; against it He has fought from the beginning. Subdue it He must if His government is to endure."

The Rev. Mr. Wylie pointed out two ways by which God can overcome sin and deliver man from its sway. The wrongdoer may be forcibly restrained, he said, as is done in society and in the home, or men may be drawn voluntarily away from wrong.

"If the child runs away or disobeys, you put him to bed or tie him to a post," continued the speaker. "Then he is prevented. So society makes laws forbidding certain acts; builds prisons and punishes evil by locking up the offender. This policy is necessary in the home and state and within certain limits it has value."

"But its limits are soon reached. It does not reach the seat of the trouble, because it affects certain kinds of evil. The actions—not the thoughts of the offender are influenced."

"We might think of God as so trying to subdue evil, but such would never solve the problem. Though he should police the earth with angels, only outward actions would be reached. Sin of the heart, pride, envy, lust, greed and hatred might remain. Besides, if God should use almighty power to subdue evil in men's hearts, He would destroy his own creation, for such coercion would rob men of freedom."

"The second method, that of drawing men away from sin," the pastor asserted, "is the one that brings results. It is the one parents use if they are wise. They lead the child to detest evil and love good. This is what the wise state does, leads men voluntarily to prefer what is right."

CHAPTER XXI. Fickle Martha.

FOR my part, as the train kept getting further and further north, my feelings kept getting more and more mixed. It came to me that I might be steering straight fur a bunch of trouble. It was Martha that done it. All this past and gone love story I had been hearing about reminded me of Martha. And I was steering straight toward her and no way out of it. How did I know but what that there girl might be expecting fur to marry me or something like that? Not but what I was awful in love with her whilst we was together, but it hadn't really set in on me very deep. I hadn't forgot about her right away. But purty soon I had got to forgetting her oftener than I remembered her. And now it wasn't no use talking. I jest wasn't in love with Martha no more and didn't have no ambition to be.

But I was considerable worried about Martha. She was an awful romantic kind of girl. I couldn't shut my eyes to the fact we was engaged to each other legal, all right. And if she wanted to act mean about it and take it to a court it would likely be binding on me. Then I says to myself if she is mean enough to do that I'll be durned if I don't go to jail before I marry her and stay there.

And then my conscience got to working inside of me agin. It wasn't but what I liked Martha well enough. I was the idea of getting married and staying married made me feel anxious. Being married may work out all right fur some folks. But I knowed it never would work any with me. Or not fun long. Because why should I want to be tied down to one place or have a steady job? That would be a mear way to live.

Of course, with a person that was the doctor's age it would be different. He had done his running around and would be willing to settle down now I guessed, and leave off being jest a traveling fakir.

Well, I thinks to myself now that he has got to be that mebbey her and him won't suit so well now, even if they does get their differences patched up. Fur all the forgiving in the world ain't going to change things or make them no different. But so long as the doctor appeared to want to find her so durned bad I was awful glad I had been the means of getting him and Miss Lucy together.

We had to change cars at Indianapolis to get to that little town. We was due to reach it about 2 o'clock in the afternoon. And the nearer we got to the place the nervous and nervous er all three of us become and not owing we was.

"Now," I says to them two as we got off the train, "foller me and I will show you the house."

Well, it has always been my luck to run into things without the right kind of a lie fixed up ahead of time. They was three or four purty good stories I had been trying over in my head to tell Martha when I seen her. Any one of them stories might of done all right, but I hadn't decided which one to use, and, of course, I run plumb into Martha. She was standing by the gate, which was about twenty yards from the veranda.

I jest says to her: "Hello!"

Martha, she is surprised to see me and she looks scared too.

"Is Miss Buckner at home?" asks Colonel Tom, lifting his hat very polite.

"Miss B-B-Buckner?" Martha stutters, very scared-like and not taking her eyes off of me to answer him.

"Miss Hampton, Martha," I says.

"Y-y-y-es, s-sh-she is," says Martha. I wondered what was the matter with her.

It is always my luck to get left all alone with my troubles. The doctor and the colonel they walked right past us when she said yes and up toward the house and left her and me standing there. When I next looked up they was all in the house.

"Martha"—I begins. But she breaks in.

"Danny," she says, looking like she is going to cry, "don't I look at me I-like that. If you knew all you wouldn't blame me. You?"

"Wouldn't blame you fur what?" I asks her.

"I know it's wrong of me," she says, begging-like.

"Mebbe it is and mebbey it ain't," I says. "But what is it?"

"But you never wrote to me," she says.

"You never wrote to me," I says, not wanting her to get the best of me, whatever it was she might be talking about.

"And then he came to town?"

"Who?" I asks her.

"Don't you know?" she says. "The man I am going to marry."

When she said that I felt all of a sudden like when you are broke and hungry and run across a half dollar you had forgot about in your other pants. I was so glad I jumped.

"Great guns!" I says.

I had never really known what being glad was before.

"Oh, Danny, Danny," she says, putting her hands in front of her face. "and here you have come to claim me for your bride!"

"Martha," I says, "you ain't acted right with me."

"Oh, Danny, Danny," she says, "I know it; I know it!"

"Some fellers in my place," I says, "would raise a dickens of a row."

"I did love you once," she says, looking at me from between her fingers.

"Yes," says I, acting real melancholy, "you did. And now you've quit it. They don't seem to me to be nothing left to live fur. Some fellers would kill themselves on the spot."

"Oh, oh, oh!" says Martha.

"But, Martha," says I. "I ain't that mean. I ain't going to do that."

That dern girl ackshellay give me a disappointed look. If anything, she was jest a bit too romantic, Martha was.

"No," says I, cheering up a little; "I am going to do something they ain't many fellers would do. Martha. I'm going to forgive you, free and fair and open, and give you back my half of that ring, and—"

Dern it; I had forgot I had lost that half of that there ring! I remembered so quick it stopped me.

"You always kept it, Danny?" she asks me, very soft spoken, so as not to give pain to one so faithful and so noble as what I was. "Let me see it, Danny."

I made like I was feeling through all my pockets fur it. But that couldn't last forever. I run out of pockets purty soon. And her face began to show she was smelling a rat. Finally I says:

"These ain't my other clothes—it must be in them."

"Danny," she says, "I believe you lost it."

"Martha," I says, taking a chance, "you know you lost your half!"

She owns up she has lost it a long while ago. And when she lost it, she says, she knowed that was fate and that our love was omened in under an evil star. And who was she, she says, to struggle agin fate?

"Martha," I says, "I'll be honest with you. Fate got away with my half, too, one day when I didn't know they was crooks like her sticking around."

Well, I seen that girl seen through me then. Martha was awful smart sometimes. And each one was so durned tickled the other one wasn't going to do any pinning away we like to of fell into love all over agin. But not quite.

"But," says Martha, after a minute, "if you didn't come back to make me marry you, what does Dr. Kirby want to see Miss Hampton about? And who was that with him?"

I had been nigh to forgetting the main thing we had all come here fur, in my gladness at getting rid of any danger of marrying Martha. But it come to me all at once I had been missing a lot that must be taking place inside that house.

"Martha," I says, "they ain't no Dr. Hartley L. Kirby. The man known as such is David Armstrong!"

I never seen any one so petrified as Martha was fur a minute.

"Yes," says I, "and the other one is Miss Lucy's brother. And they are all three in these straightening themselves out and finding where everybody gets off at, and why. One of these here serious times you read about. And you and me are missing it all, like a couple of gumps. How can we hear?"

Martha says she don't know.

"You think," I told her. "We've wasted five good minutes already. I've got to hear the rest of it. Where would they be?"

Martha guesses they will all be in the sitting room, which has got the best chairs in it.

"What is next to it? A back parlor or a bedroom or what?"

Martha says they is nothing like that to be tried. She says, "Danny, it wouldn't be honorable to listen."

"Martha," I tells her, "after the way you and me went and jilted each other, what kind of senses of honor have we got to brag about?"

She remembers that the spare bedroom is right over the sitting room.

grating, to let the heat from the room below into the one above. She says she guesses two people that wasn't so very honorable might sneak into the house the back way and up the back stairs and into the spare bedroom and lay down on their stummicks on the floor, being careful to make no noise, and both see and hear through that register. Which we done it.

I could hear well enough, but at first I couldn't see any of them. But I gathered that Miss Lucy was standing up whilst she was talking and moving around a bit now and then.

"Prentiss McMakin came to me that day," she was saying, "with an appeal—I hardly know how to tell you." She broke off.

"Go ahead, Lucy," says Colonel Tom's voice.

"He was insulting," she said. "He had been drinking. He wanted me to—he appealed to me to run off with him."

"I was furious—naturally." Her voice changed as she said it enough so you could feel how furious Miss Lucy could get. She was like her brother Tom in some ways.

"I ordered him out of the house. His answer to that was an offer to marry me. You can imagine that I was surprised as well as angry—I was perplexed."

"But I am married!" I cried. The idea that any of my own people, or any one whom I had known at home would think I wasn't married was too much for me to take in all at once.

"You think you are," said Prentiss McMakin with a smile. "But you are not."

"I wish you to understand that Prentiss McMakin did it all very, very well. That is my excuse. He acted well. There was something about him—I scarcely know how to put it. It sounds odd, but the truth is that Prentiss McMakin was always a more convincing sort of a person when he had been drinking a little than when he was sober."

"He told me that you and he, Tom, had been to Clarksville and had made investigations and that the wedding was a fraud. And he told it with a wealth of convincing detail. In the midst of it he broke off to ask to see my wedding certificate. As he talked he laughed at it and tore it up, saying that the thing was not worth the paper it was on, and he threw the pieces of paper into the grate."

"He ended with an impassioned appeal to me to go with him."

"I showed him the door. I pretended to the last that I thought he was lying to me. But I did not think so I believed him. He had done it all very cleverly. You can understand how I might, in view of what had happened."

I wanted to see Miss Lucy—how she looked when she said different things, so I could make up my mind whether she was forgiving the doctor or not. Not that I had much doubt but what they would get their personal troubles fixed up in the end. The iron grating in the floor was held down by four good sized screws, one at each corner. They wasn't no filling at all betwixt it and the iron grating that was in the ceiling of the room below. The space was hollow. I got an idea and took out my jackknife.

"What are you going to do?" whispers Martha.

"S-sh-sh," I says; "shut up and you'll see!"

One of the screws was loose, and I picked her out easy enough. The second one I broke the point off of my knife blade on. Like you nearly all ways do on a screw. When it snapped Colonel Tom he says:

"What's that?" He was powerful quick of hearing. Colonel Tom was. I laid low till they went on talking agin. Then Martha slides out on tiptoe and comes back in three seconds with one of these here little screwdrivers they use around sewing machines and the little oil can that goes with it. I oils them screws and has them out in a holy minute and lifts the grating from the floor careful and lays it careful on the rug.

By doing all of which I could get my head and shoulders down into that there hole, and by twisting my neck a good deal see a little ways to each side into the room instead of jest underneath the grating. The doctor I couldn't see yet and only a little of Colonel Tom, but Miss Lucy quite plain.

When I listens agin they are burying that there Prent McMakin. But without any flowers.

The Slashed Skirt.

The day was fine; the skies were blue. I saw her in Fifth avenue. A picture in the dress review. With something silken flashing through The slash in her skirt.

Her manner and her clothes were glad. She looked quite like a fashion ad. And, though she wore the hobble fad, I'm sure she didn't know she had The slash in her skirt.

Ah, she was fair as fair could be And tripped along unconsciously, Without the slightest thought of me Or anybody who might see The slash in her skirt.

Perhaps because she was so fair It made some other women there Turn half around to rudely stare And whisper, "My, how can she wear That slash in her skirt?"

How different were the men! To them Her radiant rags, from hat to hem, Were roses on a lovely stem, And never did a man condemn The slash in her skirt.

She tripped along unconsciously. Her artless femininity, So far from any coarseness free, It really was a joy to see The slash in her skirt.

So guileless was she, tripping through The crowds along Fifth avenue, I felt somehow it was her due For me to call her notice to The slash in her skirt— But I didn't.

TO RESCUE THE POTATO FROM ILLS IT SUFFERS.

World Scientists Coming to Prescribe For Disease Menaced Crop.

Plant scientists of the world will assemble in this country this summer and visit the potato fields of Maine, New York, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, Idaho, Washington, Oregon and California to discover a cure for the ills from which this great American crop is suffering.

The party will make a start from Bangor on Aug. 1 and will finish the work in San Francisco about Oct. 1. The entire time of the party will be taken up with study of the diseases which have recently attacked the potato plant. After the return east a report will be made to the United States government and to each of the states visited concerning the result of the survey.

Among those who will take part in this unique investigation will be Dr. O. Oppel of the Imperial Institute of Agriculture and Forestry, Berlin, and Dr. H. W. Wollenwaber, also of Germany, who are authorities on plant diseases. Several scientists are coming from Paris and London, while a large number of American representatives of the economic and cultural side of the potato industry will participate, besides leading professors in plant pathology and specialists of the federal bureau of plant industry.

One car of the special train on which the party will travel will be fitted as a laboratory with microscopes and other necessary instruments and facilities for chemical analysis. A corps of photographers will accompany the party.

According to E. H. Grubb, a widely known potato grower of Colorado, the crop situation is very serious. Unknown diseases have attacked the plant in almost every part of the country, the germs having been imported. It is thought, with some foreign tubers. In Utah, which is one of the great potato growing states, the loss by disease has been so heavy that the state crop has not been large enough to supply home needs. The dreaded "leaf roll," which has caused heavy damage in Colorado and Nebraska, has now made its appearance in Maine and New York. Several diseases, new to science, have made simultaneous attack upon potato plants in Europe and America, and it is hoped that the coming gathering of experts will be able to devise remedies for these ills.

The entire expense of this survey, including the special train of eight cars for the transcontinental tour, is being paid by a group of the railroads that operate in the potato states.

SEX TALKS IN CLASSROOMS.

Chicago to Begin Hygiene Course in High Schools Next Fall.

As a result of plans formulated by the board of education of Chicago sex hygiene will be one of the courses of instruction in the high schools of that city next year. This announcement was made a short time ago by Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, superintendent of schools, who will engage prominent physicians to give a course of lectures, beginning next September, on all subjects pertaining to sex. The resolution empowering Mrs. Young to act did not state specifically the exact methods of instruction to be given. The question of instruction for elementary schools also was raised, but was decided to be inadvisable.

"The elementary schools need it," said Mrs. Young, "but I do not believe that the time is due when we should take up that phase of the question. I do not believe in sex hygiene so much as I believe in personal purity. All the children in the high schools should be taught matters of this kind. Scientific instruction is an important factor, and it will pay us to have the best instructors obtainable."

Eugenics in School Charter.

Articles of incorporation of the Starkweather Biogenetic Foundation For the Study of Eugenics were filed recently in Washington with the deeds conveying thirty acres of land. The charter is perpetual and provides for thirty trustees as yet unnamed.

UNCLE SAM HAS NICE BIG SURPLUS

Fiscal Year's Receipts Exceed Expenses $40,000,000.

CANAL WIPES THIS OUT.

Expenditures at Panama and Public Debt Transactions, However, Create a Deficit of $2,449,000—Increased Expenses, but Surplus Exceeds Last Year's by $3,750,000.

Uncle Sam closed the fiscal year 1913 with a surplus of $40,083,229, representing the excess of receipts over expenditures exclusive of Panama canal and public debt transactions. This exceeds last year's surplus by $3,750,000. The Panama canal expenditures and public debt transactions, however, wiped out the surplus of ordinary receipts over ordinary expenditures and created a deficit for the year of $2,449,000.

Total receipts for the fiscal year amounted to $723,782,921, while the disbursements were $683,699,692.

Corporation taxes yielded the government $34,948,870, or $5,365,766 more than during the fiscal year 1912. While customs receipts for the last few months have shown a decrease, as is characteristic of a tariff revision period, the total for the fiscal year reached $318,142,000, an increase of nearly $7,000,000 over the previous year.

Record Drinking and Smoking.

The record drinking and smoking of the American people during the last twelve months brought the federal government the enormous total of $309,478,000 in internal revenue receipts, which was $16,500,000 greater than in 1912 and one of the highest amounts on record.

Under the first year's operation of the new pension law the government paid veterans and widows $175,134,000, an increase of $21,537,000.

The fiscal year closed with $164,704,000 in the general fund of the treasury compared with $167,152,000 a year ago. The cash drawer of the treasury contains $65,523,000 as the working balance of the government. The trust funds of the treasury includes $1,086,727,000 in gold coin and bullion.

The government spent $41,741,000 on construction of the Panama canal during the year, making a total of $318,229,000 spent on the canal to date, of which $179,628,000 has been paid out of the general fund of the treasury and the balance from the proceeds of bond sales.

Output of the Mints.

The mints coined during the year $37,497,000, of which $30,058,000 was in gold.

The 7,492 national banks now in existence have a total outstanding circulation of national bank notes of $737,065,050.

Secretary McAdoo announced that the daily treasury statement during the present fiscal year would be issued in a completely changed form, designed to show at a glance the assets and liabilities of the government. It will be in the nature of a budget statement to indicate from day to day whether the government revenues are progressing on a surplus or deficit basis.

The grand total of assets of the government at the beginning of the fiscal year was nearly $2,000,000,000, against which there were liabilities, including the gold and silver certificates, aggregating about $1,725,000,000, leaving balances in the treasury from $250,000,000 to $275,000,000, including the gold reserve of $150,000,000.

CITY RUNS ITS OWN DAIRY.

Cleveland's Wards to Have Milk From Municipal Herd.

Through the purchase and development of a tract of 2,000 acres of land Cleveland has begun a unique municipal experiment. Upon this great area, which is two and a half miles long and more than a mile wide, are located four city enterprises—the colony farm for the almshouse people, the overlook farm for the tuberculosis patients, the correction farm for the house of correction prisoners, and the Highland park farm for the development of a municipal cemetery. The whole tract, named by the city council the Cooley farms, after Harris R. Cooley, director of charities and correction, who has been the father of the plan, thus consists of four estates of 500 acres each.

In the development of the dairy to provide milk for the tuberculosis sanitarium and the other institutions about 100 cows have been bought. The plan is to supply the groups on the farms and also the municipal institutions in the city with pure milk, produced from the best cows living under the best conditions.

The farms are all of rolling clay land, with springs and running streams, making an ideal place for pasturage. The results will be pure milk for the municipal institutions, thoroughbred stock for sale, the enrichment of the great farms and an example of a well kept dairy for the country round about.

NO DEFINITE POLICY REGARDING MEXICO

Events Have Tied Hands of Administration.

Washington, July 14.—Secretary of State Bryan still is without any definite policy, despite the rising tide of anti-Americanism in Mexico. The reports of the last twenty-four hours culminating in the announcement that an anonymous threat to blow up the American embassy, had been received by Ambassador Wilson, and that the latter had been obliged to protest against the holding of an anti-American demonstration in the capitol Sunday, have caused a stir in Washington. The Wilson administration, by its negative policy of non-recognition of the Huerta government, virtually has tied its hands and can do little beyond going through the motion of gaining protection for American interests.

The increasing hostility toward Americans in Mexico is due principally to the refusal of the United States to recognize the Huerta government. President Huerta is in sympathy with the charge made by many Mexicans that the Wilson administration has withheld recognition with the intention of letting Mexico wear herself out in internal strife and thus make it easier for the United States to take charge of things and help herself to whatever territory the Washington government may desire to take. This charge is accepted without question as true by many Mexicans and the credence given it is, in part, an explanation of the offers of thousands of Mexicans to bear arms against the expected invading Yankee.

Girls Must Keep Off.

Evansville, Ind., July 14.—Because it is charged by the police that the practice prevailing here of riding girls on crossbars, handles and extra seats of motorcycles is responsible for an increase of immorality, the Evansville Motorcycle club has passed a law forbidding its members to carry feminine partners.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

Eight men were drowned when a sloop capsized in a squall in the lower harbor at Boston.

Walter Johnson, the Washington "phenom," has pitched his twentieth victory of the season.

Two women were drowned at Indianapolis when the horse they were driving ran off the roadway into the canal.

President Wilson has returned to Washington from Cornish, N. H., where he enjoyed a vacation of nine days.

Bulgarians burned the warehouses of the American Tobacco company at Seres while the American flag was flying over them.

Sylvia Pankhurst, who was sentenced to three months in jail for her part in the London suffragist rioting, has been released. The young woman went on a hunger strike.

Four thousand bills were introduced in the last session of the California legislature and 1,100 were passed. It is probable that no state ever had as many freak bills introduced.

The recent order of the postoffice department substituting the picture of Thomas Jefferson for that of William McKinley on postal cards has been the subject of many protests.

Thirty-one commissions were created by the recent California legislature. It is estimated that the annual expense of these commissions will amount to about $1,000,000.

Willie Anderson, a seventeen-year-old Sheridan (O.) boy, has confessed that he murdered Edgar Coleman, a sixteen-year-old blind boy, on the instigation of Henry Walters, who carried $250 insurance on the lad's life. Walters was arrested.

A CALMER TONE TO EDITORIALS

Mexican News papers Cry Down Anti-Americanism.

ONE NOTABLE EXCEPTION

Barring the One Paper Which Seems to Be Rigid in Its Expressions Against "The Yanks," the Other Organs in the Mexican Capital Seem Inclined to Take a Soberer View of the Anti-American Demonstrations.

Mexico City, July 14.—Gradually the anti-American feeling here which has been greatly fostered by sensational stories in many of the newspapers, has calmed down. La Tribuna, the Diaz organ, published an inspired editorial entitled "Dignity and Prudence" in which the sensational anti-American agitation was deplored as being dangerous and unpatriotic, besides being very unjust to the United States, which, it said, only a short time ago confiscated a whole lot of important rebel contraband on the frontier and is already investigating the hauling down of the Mexican flag at Tucson, Ariz., on July 4, as well as the conduct of the consul at Matamoros.

The Tribuna, addressing the students, who have been stirred up by the sensational articles in the newspapers, contrasts heroism and foolhardiness, declaring that heroes are those who recognize peril and do not invite it, but who after deliberation and when honor calls, do their part.

Mexicans generally regard the situation as serious, but deplore the rabid articles of the newspaper El Pais as being dangerous. Few believe that the United States really wants war with Mexico, but blame the Texans for sympathizing with the rebels. On the other hand, certain credulous leaders of the labor element, urged on by El Pais, exhibit excitement. Some 30,000 laborers have offered to go before the government drill masters the last forty-eight hours as a preparatory measure in case of war between the two countries.

El Pais came out with a seven-column head reading: "Our Cry of Alarm Yesterday Stirred Intensely the Nerves of People Throughout the Whole National Territory." It publishes a half page out of the anti-American demonstration made by the students on Friday and a characteristic first page editorial entitled "Pro Patria." It repeats the charges against Americans and declares that "the American provocation to war, which means a national catastrophe, has aroused the patriotic spirit of our society and more yet of our people and still more of our race, for any conflict with the United States will evoke traditions of hate a century old."

Mr. Wilson, the American ambassador, is still worried over the situation. The minister of the interior has received telegrams informing him that the federal forces overwhelmingly defeated the Carranzistas near Candella. More than 300 rebels were killed, 300 were wounded and 140 were taken prisoners. The rebels, 4,000 strong, commanded by General Carranza in person, fled. The federal forces entered Monolova, the Carranza headquarters, after another very fierce battle. More Carranzistas were killed and wounded and a wagon train was captured.

THOUGHT IT WAS LIGHTNING

Why Conductor of Interurban Car Did Not Stop For Express Train.

Cambridge, O., July 14.—The Wheeling-Chicago express, running forty miles an hour, ran into an interurban streetcar two miles west of this city last night during a heavy rainstorm. Four are dead, one is fatally injured and fifteen others were injured.

The dead: Fred Rainey, twenty-six, Cambridge; Dola Fairchild, thirty-two, Cambridge; William Carter, Indianapolis; Frank McNeal, Columbus, O.

Many of the injured are prominent in Cambridge. The conductor of the ill-fated car claims he saw the headlight of the approaching train, but on account of the dashing rain he thought it a lightning flash.

MR. BRYAN'S EXPLANATION

He Returns to the Platform Because He Needs the Money.

Asheville, N. C., July 14.—Secretary of State William J. Bryan, while delivering a stock Chautauqua lecture near here Sunday, took occasion to explain the reason for going upon the lecture platform while a member of the cabinet, and declared he was forced to lecture to supplement his salary from the government, which he declared was not enough to meet his expenses.

No New Trial For Becker.

New York, July 14.—Charles Becker's application for a new trial on the charge of murdering the gambler Herman Rosenthal was denied by Supreme Court Justice Goff. If relief comes to Becker now it must be through the higher courts. For months he has been in the death house at Sing Sing.

ARCADIANS ARE THERE WITH BAT

Pound Vinson Dueseldorfer Pitcher

All Over Lot Getting Six Extra Base Swats.

BREWERS ESCAPE SHUT OUT

Rushville Gives Avery Swell Support and Team Has Easy Time—

Y. M. I. Next Sunday.

A certain pitcher named Vinson, south-paw hurler for the Indianapolis Dueseldorfers, was pounded to the four corners of the lot yesterday afternoon by the Arcadian bunch of sluggers and when the fire works were over the Brewers had the short end of a 7 to 1 score. It was a shame the way Rushville slammed that old ball and out of eleven safe swats six were for extra bases.

Five of Rushville's seven runs were earned, which is going some and shows that the team has found its gait and from now on is expected to travel. Everyone hit the ball that is almost everyone for who should get two safe hits but "Pig" Yazel and "Chick" Avery who was not feeling well and connected for three hits, two of them being two-baggers.

Once upon a time the Dueseldorfers played the Arcadians a close and exciting game in fact the game went for a tie after ten innings of fierce play. But nothing like that yesterday. Class told yesterday and with Avery going good the Brewers were lucky to even score. For five innings the Brewers were held without the sign of a run. Their only score came in the sixth and was made with no one down. Two singles in a row were responsible for the run. The next three men went out in order.

The eight hits off Avery were well scattered and outside of the sixth and eighth only one hit an inning was allowed. Vinson for the Dueseldorfers started out like a real pitcher and in very first round the first two men up struck out. But the little south-paw did not last. The real bombardment of the day came in the fourth. Three doubles in a row scored two runs and seemed to take all the life out of Vinson.

The first two runs for Rushville came as the result of errors by Hanna, short stop for the visitors. He let a couple of grounders get away from him and both times it proved costly. There was no fluke in the manner in which the next two runs were scored. Pierce let off with a double after two men were out. Yazel followed with another two-bagger and Pierce scored. Along came Avery and the two base hit habit got him for he poled a long one to center field and Yazel counted.

There was no more scoring until the last of the sixth. Coombs was robbed of a hit by the center fielder, who pulled down his long fly. Pierce followed with a dandy double to center. Yazel hit one to Hanna, which was too hot to field and Pierce advanced to third. Avery struck out and with two gone Greenwood placed a nice one back of second base, scoring Pierce and Yazel.

The team behind Avery put a nice game as has been seen here this year and were with him from start to finish. Greenwood was tried out at third base. He is a little shy on the peg but accounts for it with a mashed finger and the chances are that he will get better after a few games. He played good ball at that and deserves a lot of credit. His hit in the sixth brought in two runs and the one error was not costly, as the man was double off first base, Bridgeman to Coombs.

Notes of the Game

The fast Y. M. I. team of Cincinnati will be the attraction next Sunday. The Y. M. I. team has been going at a fast clip and has defeated some of the fastest semi-pro teams in Indiana and Ohio. This is the first Cincinnati team to play here this year.

"Eddie" Harris returned to his home in Indianapolis this morning. Harris is getting along nicely and will be able to use his injured leg within two weeks. He will be unable however to play ball again this year. Harris is sure "strong" for the fans here over the manner in which they treated him.

Halterman was beaten again yesterday. This time it was Clarksburg. Clarksburg hung it on St. Paul with Halterman in the box 4 to 1.

Cambridge City defeated Newcastle yesterday 4 to 3. Newcastle should have won as they held Cambridge runless until the eighth. Romine weakened in the eighth and Cambridge scored four runs and carried away the game.

Cambridge City has lost their star first baseman, Ernie Burk. Burk has joined the Kokomo Red Sox and played there yesterday.

The Arcadians face two hard games. Next Sunday they play the Y. M. I. team and the following Sunday the Indianapolis Specials come for a return game.

Negotiations are under way for two games with Newcastle. The first will probably be played Aug. 10 at Newcastle.

TO EMPLOY COUNTY AGENT

T. A. Coleman Meets With Henry County Organizations Today.

T. A. Coleman of this city, assistant to Prof. Christie of the Purdue university experiment station in the work of installing county agents in Indiana and supervising their work, was to meet with the county board of education and the Farmers Soil Improvement club of Henry county this afternoon to agree on a county agent for Henry county. The Henry county club has been negotiating with Prof. Quar, head of the agriculture department of the Muncie Normal school, but the salary demands of Prof. Quar caused some delay in closing the contract. It was thought he would be employed at the meeting today.

TARIFF BOARD IS SOLUTION

James E. Watson Says There Would be no Need of Lobbyists if Commission Were Maintained.

SPEAKS TO REPUBLICAN CLUB

Makes no Reference to Col. Mulhall in Talk Before Political Organization of Columbus.

Business interests have a right to be represented at Washington, but would not need to maintain a lobby there if the tariff board is kept up, argued former Representative James E. Watson of Indiana, the principal speaker at Saturday's annual outing of the Buckeye Republican Club, who referred to the lobby investigation by the Senate committee, before which he will be a witness this week, says a dispatch from Columbus, O. He did not mention Col. Mulhall, whose published correspondence referred to him.

"I plead for business to go on and do business in this country," he said. "There had to be a shaking up. Roosevelt came along at the right time. He was a castor oil statesman. But he wanted the nation to take castor oil all the time. But now give honest business a chance. Don't keep hammering it continuously. The present tendency is iconoclasm, to smash something. Over the American temple is written today, 'Soak him.' I am being investigated myself. That is a personal matter, I didn't do anything wrong."

"American business has a right to be represented at Washington, honestly represented," he said. "Men wouldn't need to go to Washington to give Congress data for making schedules if a tariff board was kept at work. I never knew a corrupt man in Congress; one who sold, or would sell, his vote for money," he said.

He attacked the Democratic method of making a tariff bill by caucus decree. "President Wilson at Indianapolis in the first speech of his I heard, said there was no necessity for secrecy in congressional proceedings, yet there never was such secrecy in making a tariff as in the case of the Underwood bill, now the Simmons bill. In President Wilson's book 'Our New Freedom,' Page 172, he says 'there is no excuse for causing Congress.' Yet for the first time in the history of tariff making a party caucus has been called, forcibly to bind every senator to vote for the tariff bill just as it comes from the committee without change or amendment. Theory at Princeton is one thing, and practice at Washington is another thing."

The Pastors Aid society of the Main Street Christian church will meet in the parlors of the church tomorrow afternoon at two-thirty o'clock. As this is the last meeting for the summer, a full attendance is desired.
